OSLT

Occupation-specific
Language Training

Are you new to Canada?

Do you want to communicate better at work?

Occupation-specific Language Training (OSLT) helps develop the language skills you need to succeed at your workplace. Most courses are offered in English (OSLT); some are also offered in French as FLAP (Formation linguistique axée sur les professions). OSLT courses are offered at no cost to eligible participants.

Courses are part-time and full-time in a variety of formats. During the COVID-19 pandemic, they will be delivered in a virtual format that is exclusively online. Courses are 40, 140 or 180 hours. Contact your local college to find out about course and delivery options.

You will learn to:

- communicate clearly and effectively with others at work.
- understand Canadian workplace culture in your field.
- build your professional network and advance your career.

“The course was very useful because it prepared us well for communicating in the workforce... I feel more confident about communicating at work and I have adapted smoothly in the workplace because of what I learned in the course.”

— Jadal Abdul Rahim,
Workplace Communication Skills for Accounting and Finance

- language proficiency of at least level 5 in Canadian Language Benchmarks (CLB), or Niveaux de compétence linguistique canadiens (NCLC) for courses taught in French (for skilled trades at least level 4 in CLB/NCLC). Some courses require higher CLB levels.

“The training is very practical – we wrote letters and practised conversations that would happen on the job... I always recommend the training to other immigrants – it’s a good fit for people who are skilled in certain areas and want to get ahead, and it’s free.”

— Bella Kravtsov,
Workplace Communication Skills for Health Care

Pursue workplace language training that will help you to:

- communicate better with clients, supervisors and colleagues.
- understand your sector and occupation in Canada.
- understand Canadian workplace culture in your field.
- develop strong interviewing, networking and job-search communication skills.
