

Occupation-specific Language Training

➤ Are you new to Canada?

➤ Are you looking for workplace language training in your field?

➤ Is online language training the best option for you?

Occupation-specific Language Training (OSLT) helps develop the language skills you need to succeed in your occupation. It is delivered by Ontario public colleges in blended and online formats. (Blended courses integrate virtual or in-person classes with online activities.) For information about all OSLT options, visit www.co-oslt.org.

OSLT Online

OSLT online modules provide a flexible and convenient way to receive language training in English. All online modules are led by experienced faculty and can be taken from anywhere in Ontario. Online modules are typically six weeks in length (40 hours) and offer a combination of online group and individual activities. Group sessions are usually weekly for 1.5 hours, while the rest of the course hours are spent on individual online activities. Three online modules in one sector are equivalent to a blended OSLT course. All three modules are available in the business, health care and technology sectors. There is no cost to eligible participants. These modules will help you:

- learn how to access the business, construction trades, health sciences or technology job markets in Ontario.
- communicate in the business, health sciences or technology sectors in Ontario.
- manage workplace interactions in the business, health sciences or technology sectors in Ontario.

OSLT online also offers 40-hour courses (8 or 10 weeks) for eligible OSLT graduates on how to write professionally in the business, health sciences or technology sectors in Ontario. Please refer to your local college for eligibility requirements.

All modules and courses require access to a computer with video and audio capabilities as well as an internet connection. Colleges will issue an OSLT credential for each online module successfully completed.
